NEW MARINCO PARKPOWER™ DETACHABLE POWER KITS MAKE CLASS III RV ELECTRICAL HOOKUPS A SNAP Rugged, Reliable System Gets You Connected at Home, Park or Campground

Handling cumbersome hard-wired AC power hookups — particularly heavy-duty 50A systems — is a chore that can quickly take the “recreation” out of RVing. This is precisely why the Marinco Recreational Group developed its innovative ParkPower™ detachable power systems, replacing hard to handle hard-wired hookups with a detachable cordset system that’s easier to use, coil and store.

And with the introduction of new American-made ParkPower Conversion Kits, it’s also easier than ever for RV enthusiasts to purchase and install detachable power. Each affordable kit is meant to be used with a vehicle’s existing power cable. It contains a quality built ParkPower inlet, connector, weatherproof connector cover, adapter plates and detailed installation instructions.

It is designed for easy installation on a wide variety of Class III recreational vehicles, so just about every RV on the road can boast a state-of-the-art power hookup system. Marinco offers both 30A and 50A ParkPower Conversion Kits featuring the Easy Lock System for a positive, waterproof connection every time. ParkPower components are manufactured using the finest marine-grade, corrosion resistant materials, so they’re more than tough enough to withstand dirt, moisture, extreme temperatures, vibration, chemicals or other “rigors of the road.”

Marinco offers a wide variety of ParkPower components and accessories, including extension cordsets and power adapters covering 15A, 20A, 30A and 50A, solving the age-old problem of RV/power source compatibility.
